Birmingham Jewish Community Care

We care for you

Birmingham Jewish Community Care, one of the Birmingham Jewish community's oldest established charities can trace its origins back over 100 years. An independent registered charity, it currently cares for many members of the community both young and old through its work at Andrew Cohen House, its Social Work department, Meals on Wheels Service and Luncheon Club.

Andrew Cohen House provides nursing care whether long term or respite for those in our community who are increasingly frail and in need of high levels of medical or nursing care. It also provides residential care for those who simply want to live in comfort and safety.

The Home is unique in offering 'care for life' and thereby security and peace of mind both to its residents and their families. It is reassuring to know that residents are able to continue to live at Andrew Cohen House for the rest of their lives regardless of their health.

Huge emphasis is placed on providing the maximum possible stimulation with a wide range of activities, outings and entertainments all of which are designed to enrich the quality of their life.

The cost of providing these services is considerable and funds received from local authorities fall far short of running costs.

By remembering Birmingham Jewish Community Care in your will, you will be helping to open the doors to the facilities at Andrew Cohen House and the additional care services we provide.

If you are thinking of making or changing your will, please remember us.

In this way you will ensure that this cherished charity can continue to flourish and benefit your own loved ones and friends.
